Summary of findings

In 2013, the level of Mergers & Acquisitions (M&A) in Australia remained relatively weak, a trend we already saw in the previous year. In total there were 679 deals*, a slight increase from last year's 633 deals. Still, the M&A activity in 2013 was well below the average deal levels for the past 10 years.

Lower exchange rates renewed consumer spending and improving share market conditions should enhance deal activity in 2014.

This edition of Dealtracker update, M&A and IPO Snapshot for 2013 – provides an overview of Australian deals and ASX market activity during the 12 month period to 31 December 2013. This edition is an update on our Dealtracker – Flight to Quality publication for the 18 month period to 31 December 2012. A full Dealtracker for the 18 month period to 30 June 2014 is planned for later this year.

*We have considered transactions where the target company was in Australia and the acquirer gained control of the company.

Key insights:

Market conditions were still difficult in 2013

The deal levels reflect low market confidence as businesses struggle with poor customer demand, high exchange rates and energy and wage cost pressures. Companies are risk averse and are generally seeking profit growth primarily through cost cutting.

Nonetheless, companies with strong growth agendas are still looking for acquisition opportunities to create long term strategic value.

M&A activity was still largely in low growth sectors

A high proportion of the total M&A deals that occurred were in low growth sectors of the economy. Many of the transactions that we have worked on in low growth sectors have been driven by the need for business restructuring and debt refinancing.

Resources sector was out of favour

There is evidence of significantly lower valuations of companies in the resource sector as a result of lower commodity prices, increasing exploration costs and reduced investment confidence following the deferral of a number of major investment projects, such as the $8 billion Olympic Dam project by BHP.

There has also been a clear trend away from IPOs in the materials (mining) sector. IPOs in recent years had previously been dominated by speculative interest in small exploration and mining companies. However, the changed market conditions in this sector are making it extremely difficult for junior miners and explorers to gain investment funding and therefore there were only seven new IPOs in this sector in 2013.

High growth businesses are in demand and becoming expensive

The general lack of confidence in market conditions has resulted in a shortage of quality, high growth businesses on the market. Acquisition opportunities in these high growth sectors are often being heavily contested, resulting in high transaction values. The Investment Managers (IM) in particular are chasing deals in the high growth sectors of the market. Some of the largest IM deals occurred in infrastructure, healthcare, food and online education.

Signs of confidence

Whilst M&A deal levels are still far from buoyant, M&A confidence did appear to improve in the latter half of 2013, with 23% more deals compared to the first half. The IPO market also opened in the last quarter of 2013, with 30 new listings and $6,110m of capital being raised in this last quarter alone. IPOs in December 2013 included Pact Group Holdings Limited, Nine Entertainment Co. Holdings Limited, Cover-More Group Limited, Dick Smith Holdings Limited and Veda Group Limited.

M&A deal numbers

Whilst deal volumes in 2013 were up 7% from 2012, they were 14.6% lower than in 2011. Depressed M&A levels are not unique to Australia, as 2013 was the slowest year for M&A activity globally since 2009.*

The acquisitions that are going ahead are generally taking longer to complete, as buyers are spending more time on due diligence to gain greater certainty over deal economics prior to entering into a transaction.

Furthermore, we have observed an increase in the number of potential deals failing to complete due to differences in pricing expectations arising during the course of the transaction. This trend is arising as a consequence of longer deal times and pressure being placed on target companies to demonstrate that they are able to meet forecasts. This can create a quagmire, as business performance is often undermined by the management team being distracted by the due diligence process.

M&A Quarterly & Half-yearly Trends

The good news is that Australian M&A confidence seems to be improving, as deal volumes were nearly 23% higher in the second half of 2013 relative to the first half.

M&A deals by sector

Overall, sector level activity was relatively comparable with 2012. The industries with the highest level of M&A activity were industries with comparatively low industry growth forecasts. Whilst many businesses in low growth industries are looking to achieve growth through M&A, M&A activity in poor performing sectors is also being driven by the need for corporate and debt restructuring.

IMs are chasing deals in the growth sectors of the market, with some of the largest IM deals occurring in infrastructure, healthcare, food and online education. Acquisition opportunities in these high growth sectors are often being heavily contested. An example of this was Inghams Enterprises, which had capacity to double its chicken production. Inghams Enterprises attracted interest from Blackstone Group, Chinese agribusiness giant New Hope, Hong Kong based private equity group Affinity Partners and local fund Archer Capital*.

Acquisition opportunities in high growth sectors are often being heavily contested, resulting in higher transaction values. This was evident towards the end of the year when we saw a bidding war for Warrnambool Cheese & Butter.

Top deals

The largest deal of the year was the NSW Ports Consortium acquisition of the 99 year lease of Port Botany from Sydney Ports.

The NSW Ports Consortium is made up of QSuper Ltd, AustralianSuper Pty Ltd, Tawreed Investments Ltd (subsidiary of Abu Dhabi Investments Authority), Industry Funds Management Pty Ltd, Host-Plus Pty Ltd, Cbus Industry Superannuation Fund and Hesta.

Many of the largest deals had international acquirers. This highlights that there is still interest from overseas businesses in Australian assets.

Australian Securities Exchange (ASX) median industry EBITDA multiples

The S&P/ASX200 shows that Australian listed companies generally trended upwards in 2013, showing signs of improving market confidence.

The sectors with the highest median trading multiples continued to be healthcare and financials, with strong growth rates still forecast for these sectors.

Multiples in the information technology sector have improved in recent years, with the digital revolution expected to drive further growth.

Multiples in the materials (mining) sector have continued to fall as a result of declining commodity prices and better global demand/ supply equilibrium.

Listing multiples

Virtus Health

Virtus Health's primary activity is the supply of assisted reproductive services, which accounts for over 77% of its revenue. This is an area of the health industry that is forecasting strong growth, as Australia's female population rises and the trend towards older women having children continues.

Virtus Health was formed by Quadrant Private Equity through its investment in IVF Australia in 2008 and subsequent bolt-on acquisitions. At 31 December 2013, the Company was trading at more than 50% above the IPO share price, although it has come back a little at the date of this update.

From the top 10 IPOs, the two companies with the highest forecast multiples were OzForex Group Limited (OzForex Group) and Cover-More Group Limited (Cover-More Group). These companies are both in the growing financial services sector, which generally trades at higher multiples.

OzForex Group

OzForex Group provides online international payment services. It has significant growth potential with geographic expansion and the roll out of its services into the US market sighted as reasons behind its offering. Following OzForex Group's IPO the company successfully applied for US money transmitter licenses for 29 US States and at 31 December 2013 was trading at a 44% premium to its offer price.

Cover-More Group

Cover-More Group offers travel and medical insurance to customers throughout Australasia. Private Equity firm Crescent Capital held an approximate 83% stake in the company prior to the IPO. As at 31 December 2013, the shares were trading at a slight discount to its offer price.

Dick Smith Holdings Limited

Of the top 10 largest IPOs in 2013, Dick Smith Holdings Limited (Dick Smith) listed at the lowest forecast EBITDA multiple (7.4 times). Nonetheless, the implied equity value of Dick Smith on listing of $520 million represents a significant valuation turnaround, as the PE firm, Anchorage, purchased the company from Woolworths in November 2012 for a final consideration of just $94 million.

The management team implemented strategic, customer and operational programs to substantially improve financial results within the year. As at 31 December 2013, Dick Smith was trading at a slight discount (5%) to its listing price, possibility reflecting investor concerns as to the potential to further grow earnings in a highly competitive and low margin retail environment.
