

EDISCOVERY & DATA MANAGEMENT

Taking control of your data

In a time of increasing regulatory control and a number of Royal Commissions, it's clear that eDiscovery isn't just about litigation.

With the vast amount of data involved in investigations, FOI requests and litigation, it's vital for you to quickly and efficiently analyse data whilst managing costs to clients.

What is it?

eDiscovery is the process of collecting, processing and reviewing electronic material for use in litigation, investigations and other disclosure processes.

What do we do?

We take the hassle and risk out of eDiscovery. Accessing our national technology, expertise and experience, we are able to provide flexible and tailored solutions that address the complexity and challenges of today's data driven processes – so that you can focus on what really matters.

Our support is tailored to your specific requirements – from early case assessment and investigation through to full eDiscovery. We adopt industry best practice and the latest technologies.

No matter is too small or too big.

Why do I need this now?

Discovery and disclosure can be a significant expense to you and your client, and is one of the most time consuming aspects of litigation – often resulting in a seemingly unlimited number of documents, which need to be reviewed and assessed for relevance.

We know that clients expect you to be both a legal and technological expert – but without the right infrastructure and resources, many law firms are unable to invest in costly technology and permanent legal technology teams.

What will it cost me?

We are unique in providing a capped fee structure, tailored to your level of requirement and need. We strive to provide certainty to you and your clients.
